'£3.5m Lottery win hasn't changed me'

WINNING £3.5 million on the lottery does not change your life, according to one Northamptonshire winner... it just makes things that little bit easier.

Chris Bowers and his wife Susan scooped £3,497,114 last July, after buying a ticket at their local Sainsbury's in Wellingborough.

Since then the couple, who are both 62, have bought a bungalow in Cogenhoe and two new cars, but have yet to make any extravagant purchases.

Former forklift truck engineer Mr Bowers was at Silverstone yesterday to celebrate the promise of the creation of 18 millionaires this Friday through the EuroMillions Millionaire Raffle.

After receiving expert motoring tuition, he helped create a giant number 18, through a combination of skids, turns and doughnuts.

Speaking afterwards, Mr Bowers said: "I have played the lottery since it started and had won odd bits and pieces, like £10 or £50, but to win so much was quite a shock. I hadn't long bought an iPhone and I was checking the lottery app and I saw all six numbers come up. That's when your heart starts pounding. My wife was telling me I had been silly and done something wrong.

"We didn't sleep on Saturday night, and then on Monday someone from Camelot came and confirmed it. Then we really didn't get any sleep, we were so happy."

Chris Bowers (inset) was at Silverstone to help promote the creation of 18 Euro-millionaire raffle winners

Mr Bowers retired from his job three years early, but he and his wife were determined not to blow their windfall. He said: "It's hard to process, or even think about, numbers like £3.5 million. I used to have to read the amount backwards from the 'pence'. It was good. It changed our lives, but only in the way that it made things easier. We're still the same people, and have the same friends and family.

"We bought our bungalow, and I've always had nice cars as we've never had children so could afford the little extras, but I bought a Land Rover and a Mercedes. We haven't bought anything extravagant. We have a nice house, but we haven't been silly and over-bought.

"We just try to have a good time. It's made life a little easier. It's a nice feeling. It's there if we need it, and we've been able to help a few people out here and there," he added.

"Besides, my wife wouldn't let me squander it all."

Hundreds of criminals tagged

HUNDREDS of criminals and suspects are being electronically tagged every year in Northamptonshire.

And the number has risen dramatically over the past decade, with almost 500 more being monitored last year compared with in 2002/03.

In the 2011/12 financial year, 827 people were tagged following orders by judges at the county's courts.

The number was down by almost 100 compared with the previous year but still represents a huge jump from the 2002/03 figure of just 358.

Nationally, a total of 105,105 criminals were tagged last year, more than 10,000 down on the previous 12 month period.

Northamptonshire had one of the lowest totals of all the counties listed.

Firm's gets deal for Olympic signs

DISABLED staff at a Northampton sign-making company will have their work seen by millions of TV viewers as they direct Olympic cyclists during this summer's games.

Specialist road sign manufacturer Nordis Signs has started putting up almost 2,000 temporary road signs to direct cyclists competing in Olympic road-race events around the 250km course.

They were made with help from staff at Nordis in Lodge Farm Industrial Estate, Northampton the majority of whom have learning disabilities.

Full steam ahead for new station after £10m pledge

WORK will begin this year to transform Northampton's railway station after the Government announced a £10 million investment in the scheme.

Transport minister Justine Greening was at the station yesterday, when she made the announcement that will pave the way for the long-awaited project to begin.

Local MPs, politicians and business leaders have heralded the news as "fantastic" for passengers, residents and the town overall, and said the scheme would be a "key element" in its ongoing regeneration.

Ms Greening said: "For a long time now Northampton has needed a station that it can really be proud of and it hasn't had that station."

"This Government has been really keen to put some life back into Northampton."

She added: "We've got to make sure this station is able to cope with the passengers that its going to have in years to come. I think this will be a fantastic new station for Northampton."

The new station will be double the size of the present building, which is currently operating at capacity during peak hours.

Redevelopment work will begin later this year. The building will be completely demolished and a new, modern station built on the site.

Partners including Network Rail and Northamptonshire County Council will meet the remainder of the £20 million development costs.

Northampton North MP Michael Ellis said the investment was recognition from the Government of Northampton's potential.

He said: "This town is going forward. It's alive with new investment, the prospect of new jobs, new businesses and new enterprise."

"I think this shows the deep level of commitment to Northampton by this Government at a time of economic difficulty."

It is hoped the new station, which is within the Northampton Waterside Enterprise Zone, will become an iconic gateway and support continued economic growth in the town.

West Northamptonshire Development Corporation (WNDC), has led calls for the station's redevelopment.

Chairman John Markham said: "This announcement is fantastic news for Northamptonshire, as well as the wider region. It is the culmination of more than five years hard work to make this vital and complex scheme a reality."

"The new station will be a modern gateway to Northampton, and support new development in the Waterside Enterprise Zone."

Outline plans for the new station building were approved last October. Potential later phases of the development could include a 1,270 space car park and a 28,000 square metre office development.

Brian Binley, MP for Northampton South and chairman of Northampton Rail Users' Group, welcomed the investment, which he believes will attract more businesses to invest in the town.

He said: "This is incredible news and proves that Northampton is alive. We have to sell the Enterprise Zone globally and that means selling Northampton as well. If the first impression of any business leader coming to our town is of our present station, then that won't help us much."

"A new station will help us attract businesses from around the world, which in itself will change the fabric and stature of our town for 100 years and provide more opportunities for our young people and those that follow."

"We have won this investment at one of the most difficult financial times our country has experienced and that shows that Northampton is set for great things"

Councillor Jim Harker, leader of Northamptonshire County Council, said the redevelopment of Castle Station was a key element in the regeneration of Northampton.

He said: "Castle Railway Station is the principal gateway to Northampton and it is right that we should all work together to give it the importance and status that it needs to attract inward investment and create a prosperous economy."

Councillor David Mackintosh, leader of Northampton Borough Council, said it was great to see the scheme happening after months of lobbying: "We are not just making plans for regeneration, we are seeing them come to life."

Pudsey set for a star role in Hollywood film

BRITAIN'S Got Talent winner Ashleigh Butler believes her victorious dog Pudsey would be perfect for Hollywood roles like the one played by Uggie in Oscar-winning film The Artist.

Pudsey is enjoying his new found fame and dined on steak after last night's victory, and Miss Butler says if he gets his paws on a Tinseltown role she will be by his side.

The teenager from Wellingborough is adamant that she and her pet will not be separated but is aware that the dancing dog could be a movie star in the making.

She said: "I did watch The Artist and thought it was an amazing film and Uggie was absolutely brilliant and, you know, I think Pudsey would be perfect for that kind of thing because he loves film work and looking at cameras."

Ashleigh says she is not afraid Pudsey's fame will split them up, because she is certain he could not cope away from her.

She said: "If Pudsey did go to Hollywood I'd have to go with him because, you know, there's no way you're going to separate me and Pudsey."

"We're always going to be together, and, you know, I don't think he'd ever want to go away from me."

"It's different with film work - I'd still be directing him, I'd still be there helping him out, but he'd never go off to a different country or even a different part of a country without me."

The 17-year-old from Wellingborough and her six-year-old dog - which is a cross between a border collie, bichon frise and Chinese crested - danced their way to the top in the final of the show on Saturday.

Dog trainer Ashleigh said: "Winning Britain's Got Talent is a dream come true. Pudsey is my life and by winning Britain's Got Talent, I feel all of our hard work has paid off."

Ashleigh and Pudsey have scooped £500,000 prize money and will now perform at the Royal Variety Performance.

Police appeal after kidnap bid

NORTHAMPTONSHIRE Police are appealing for any witnesses to come forward after an 11-year-old boy was approached by two men in a van who attempted to abduct him as he walked through a village alone at night.

The incident happened at about 8pm on Friday in the High Street in Roade, Northamptonshire and the victim was walking along the road when he saw two men and a white transit van.

The young boy told police that one man was sitting in the van and the other man was outside of it.

The victim told police that as he made his way towards the van, the man outside of it told him to get inside.

The young boy punched the man in the face and knocked him over and then the victim ran off to home.

The victim was not injured in the incident.

Detective Inspector Nick Purdie said: "Although this is a worrying incident there haven't been any other similar incidents."

"We are anxious to trace both the men and the van and we are appealing for any witnesses to come forward that can help us with these enquiries."

The young boy was crying after the incident and ran past a man and a woman in the High Street.

Parents inspired to launch charity appeal in tribute

THE PARENTS of a little girl who died of a rare brain disease, have launched a fund-raising campaign in her memory to thank the hospice which provided her with 'outstanding' care.

Poppy Thomson died in December, aged only three years old, in the arms of Kate and Andy Thomson at the Helen and Douglas Hospice in Oxford after a year-long battle with the degenerative disease.

The couple, from East Hunsbury, had adopted Poppy when she was 18 months old, but a year later, on New Year's Eve 2010, their toddler was diagnosed with terminal Leukodystrophy after struggling to learn how to walk.

Kate said: "It was awful for her, for us and everyone involved."

"From the moment she was diagnosed we said there would be no tears in front of her and we just surrounded her with laughter and love."

"She was a very clever and funny girl and she was also very independent. Even when she was ill she would try to do as much as she could by herself."

Miraculously, Kate, who had previously undergone seven years of IVF treatment, fell pregnant just months before Poppy became ill but it added pressure to the couple as Poppy's condition worsened.

The couple had been adamant they would not take Poppy to a hospice, and it was only when they needed help learning how to use a new medicine that they agreed to spend a week there.

Kate added: "We wanted to care for her at home, that was always our plan.

"We were very, very reluctant to use the hospice. We had fantastic nurses to call on at Northampton General Hospital and I felt like we would be letting her down. But after spending one night there I realised what a safe place it was."

Andy added: "They turned out to be our saving grace."

"Right from the start we were allowed to continue with our own routine and were never dictated to."

"We ended up returning for the six weeks leading to Poppy's death and she was given the best possible care while we had fantastic support."

"We were able to be mum and dad again and not her nurses, which allowed us precious quality time with Poppy."

Earlier this year the couple set up a butterfly fund in Poppy's name at the hospice and have already raised more than £2,000.

Next month, Andy will climb Snowdon in North Wales with friends and work colleagues from Wood Way UK, in Earls Barton, 31 of whom will also join Kate in the Birmingham half marathon later this year.

Oak Leaf Care, a centre for patients suffering brain traumas, where Kate works as a community support worker, has made the hospice their charity of the year, while family and friends have organised their own fund-raising events.

To donate, visit www.justgiving.com/woodway, where all contributions will be linked to Poppy's fund.

The Albero restaurant had earned a reputation for fine food under the leadership of head chef, Liam Goodwill (above)

CE library picture

College makes sad decision to close restaurant

A RESTAURANT widely regarded as one of the best in Northamptonshire has been forced to close, despite winning rave reviews from diners.

The Albero restaurant, based in the Northampton College building in Lower Mounts, closed last week following a consultation period with staff.

Bosses claimed the restaurant was not making enough money, despite earning plaudits from food lovers across the county for its innovative Mediterranean-inspired cuisine.

Principal of Northampton College, Len Closs, said: "A final decision has now been made and the restaurant has been closed.

"The decision has been based fundamentally on concerns over its current and future financial viability.

"We are very proud of what has been achieved at The Albero and we are grateful for the support of some loyal customers, who have been highly complimentary about the standard of food and service that the restaurant has delivered since it opened in October 2010.

"The Albero has been operating in the midst of a nationwide downturn and its failure to generate sufficient income is no reflection on the staff who have worked very hard in difficult circumstances to deliver an excellent dining experience."

Four full-time members of staff are understood to have been made redundant as a result of the closure, while three apprentices will remain with the college and be able to complete their qualifications.

The restaurant was run by Liam Goodwill, a former star of Gordon Ramsey's F Word programme who won widespread acclaim for his ambitious menu, which featured dishes such as crisp lamb's tongues with butterbeans, wild garlic and morels. Inspectors from Michelin are understood to have visited in recent months and it was rumoured Albero may have been in line to receive a coveted star later this year.

Labour politician visits town

LABOUR politician Rachel Reeves visited Northampton as part of her party's drive to look at different ways of providing financial services.

The shadow chief secretary to the treasury, who is MP for Leeds West, was a guest of former Northampton North Labour MP Sally Keeble, as she visited Nationwide Building Society in the town and the Credit Union based at Thorplands Community Shop.

The pair spoke to families about how their lives were being hit by the recession, to young people struggling to find work, and to staff at Nationwide and the Credit Union about how the financial services sector needed to be transformed in order to get back to growth.

Row over noisy road rumbles on REMEDIAL work is about to start on a key road in Northampton which had £6.8m spent on it as part of a major transformation project only a year ago.

Northamptonshire County Council completed a regeneration project to upgrade Gladstone Road, Spencer - a major link road between Mill Lane and Spencer Bridge Road - in 2011, including the introduction of a 20mph speed limit and so-called rumble strips designed to slow cars down.

However, the overall result has been a stream of complaints directed at County Hall from residents complaining the new road surface has created a noise "like a plane taking off".

Following a campaign and a petition, the county council now intends to do some trial work to see if the noise levels can be reduced.

the tests prove successful, the entire stretch will be re-laid at a cost rumoured to be in the region of £300,000.

Borough councillor Gareth Eales (Lab, Spencer) gave a cautious welcome to the news: "It is a small success for the campaign.

"It is good the council has listened to the concerns of residents and acted upon them."

However, he warned that if the remedial work failed to tackle the noise issue the council would then have to move to a "Plan B situation" which could involve resurfacing the entire road with Tarmac with no guarantee the sub-contractor would foot the bill.

Councillor Eales said residents

Concern about noise levels from the new road surface in Gladstone Road has led to a rethink by council officials; and (right) councillor Gareth Eales were concerned about noise levels, but added that, if anything, speeds had actually risen since the work was completed.

A spokesman for the county council said: "Work will be done to carry out remedial works to reduce the noise levels caused by the highway surface in the Gladstone Road area.

"Before the work is done we will need to conduct noise and material surveys under controlled conditions which will require a quick closure of the road one evening during next week. Access for residents will not be affected.

"Remedial works will then be carried out in over three weekends. The process is dependent on dry weather so may have to be delayed if rain is forecast.

"Once this has been done, the site will be monitored to make sure the material is suitable for all the remedial works.

"It is anticipated that any costs will be covered by the sub-contractor."

Liam Bergin, who will star in the show, takes a break from rehearsals

CE picture mnce-09-05-12-JL3-01

Print room converted into theatre

FINISHING touches are being put on rehearsals for a professional play staged in the former print room at the Chronicle & Echo building.

Award-winning theatrical director Laurie Sansom, from the Royal and Derngate, has been working intensively with actors in a modern industrial version of Greek play The Bacchae in the empty space.

Mr Sansom wanted to use the former inserting room to put a hard 21st century edge on the classic and his team have transformed the space into an urban landscape.

Former Eastenders star Liam Bergin, who will play Pantheus, who took a break from rehearsals to speak to the media, said: "I think the real thing could be something really special and electric."

"I doubt many of the audience will have seen theatre in anywhere like this. I live in London and I've certainly never been anywhere like it."

The room where the action will take place between Friday May 18 and Saturday June 30 was formerly occupied by two inserting drums and four conveyor belts which help insert supplements into the main daily Chron.

Mr Bergin said: "Acting in here doesn't feel like a play, it seems a lot more cinematic. In theatre you have the proscenium arch between you and the audience. In here it feels much more alive in some ways. It'll actually be quite hard for the audience not to feel part of it."

Forming part of the theatres' Festival of Chaos trilogy of plays, The Bacchae explores a society teetering on the brink of revolution.

The god Dionysus returns to a modern city of money and corporate greed to take revenge on those who have forgotten him.

Mr Bergin said the thought of performing in front of an intimate audience is intimidating. He admitted that potentially being able to see the audiences' negative reactions, something normally screened by the dark of a theatre - could be somewhat off-putting.

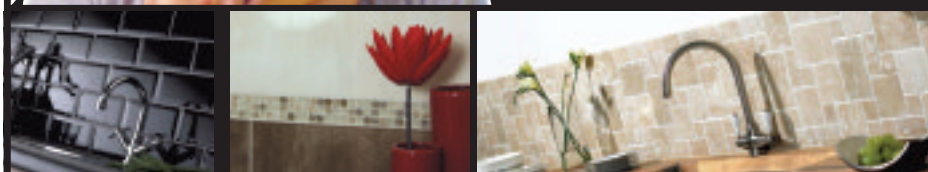

He said: "Even if they don't like what we're doing, there's plenty of places for your eyes to go."

Film stars launch Silverstone race

STARS of stage, screen and sport, including Star Trek and X-Men actor Sir Patrick Stewart, will take to the track at this year's Silverstone Classic for the event's annual celebrity race.

Racing in competition-prepared Morgan cars – in aid of charities the Bobby Moore Fund, Birmingham Children's Hospital and the Rick Parfitt Junior Crohn's Foundation – Sir Patrick will be joined by Olympic skier and star of ITV1's Dancing on Ice Chemmy Alcott, award-winning chef Heston Blumenthal, ex-England footballer Steve Bull and AC/DC frontman Brian Johnson for the race at the three-day classic car festival in July.

Lining up alongside them on the grid will also be Brendan Cole, from BBC1's Strictly Come Dancing, BBC Radio 1's Comedy Dave, BBC Countryfile's Julia Bradbury, lifestyle guru Jo Wood, Sky Sports presenter Vicky Gomersall, plus Emmerdale's Kelvin Fletcher and Coronation Street's Tony Hirst.

At the official event launch at Silverstone yesterday, Sir Patrick said he was looking forward to competing at the famous Northamptonshire race track.

Sir Patrick Stewart prepares to be given a spin around the circuit

MNCE-09-05-12-JL-1-13

He said: "I'm excited and nervous in equal measure.

"What makes the whole thing so special is being here at Silverstone. All my life this has been a legendary place for British motor racing.

"I only have to read the names of the corners and I start getting excited."

Meanwhile, Olympic skier Chemmy Alcott confessed to being "a bit of a speed demon".

She compared getting behind the wheel to speeding downhill on a pair of skis, saying: "When I race downhill the fastest I clock is about 92mph, and I am doing that without a beautiful Morgan or anything strapping me in.

"But I am more comfortable doing that because it is known to me. Racing downhill at 80 or 90mph is fine to me.

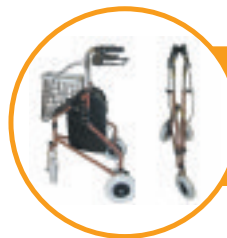

"I think car racing is probably going to be a bit more challenging."

Inquiry into the most important issues

A COUNCIL scrutiny panel is to begin a year-long investigation into the most important issues affecting Northampton residents, including a study on the town centre.

Crime, infrastructure requirements and the illegal sub-letting of council properties were all topics repeatedly raised by residents, who responded to an open request by Northampton Borough Council's Overview and Scrutiny Committee for ideas.

The survey, undertaken earlier this year, has provided a focus for councillors in the committee, who will begin work on the subjects in the next few weeks.

Councillor Les Marriott, chair of Northampton Borough Council's overview and scrutiny committee, said: "Earlier this year we had a fantastic response when we asked people what they wanted us to look at.

"Some questions we were able to answer immediately and the rest could be grouped into several key areas.

"That means we now have a number of interesting issues to take a closer look at, and we will again be asking for people to get involved and have their say as each investigation progresses.

"Over the next 12 months we will be looking to get to the bottom of each issue, and producing reports and recommendations that not only answer the question, but can be used to make our town a better place to live, work and visit."

The committee is able to look into any issue affecting residents or the town, and ideas do not need to be related to borough council services. Visit www.northampton.gov.uk/scrutiny or call Tracey Tiff on Northampton 837408.

A survey taken earlier this year will provide a starting point for a year-long probe into Northampton's needs

Claire Haddon is starring in the BBC3 show Be Your Own Boss and is selling ice creams at Northampton College

TV show chance for Claire

A WOMAN with an ambition to run her own business is competing for thousands of pounds of investment as part of a new TV show and will be getting her campaign off the ground by selling cupcakes from an ice cream van at Northampton College this week.

Claire Haddon, who was once a student at the college, has been lent a van by Northampton ice cream firm Mari-os and she will be selling her cakes at a variety of locations around Northampton on May 17 and 18 including the Booth Lane campus.

She applied to take part in a new BBC3 show called Be Your Own Boss and the programme makers gave her £100 to turn into a profit which she aims to do by selling cakes for two days.

Her long-term aim is to set up a cake and cocktail delivery business where you can order drinks and cakes to complement each other and book a barman to make the cocktails for you.

The next stage of the process is an event over the Bank Holiday weekend where she will talk about her £100 enterprise and pitch her business idea in the hope of being one of the final 18 who will take part in the programme.

She said: "I would like to run my own business because you don't have anybody else to answer to, or to blame."

The show will be fronted by Richard Reed, who was one of the founders of Innocent Smoothies, and is planned to go out in September.

As well as the college, Claire will be selling cakes outside Barclaycard, Nationwide and Phoenix IT in Northampton today, Thursday

Olympic visitors to town

TWO Olympic trampoline teams have confirmed they will be using Northampton as their training base ahead of this summer's competition.

The Japanese and Australian teams will both spend a week at the Northamptonshire Trampoline Gymnastics Academy (NTGA) in July, before joining other athletes at the Olympic village in London.

The academy, at Northampton Trampoline Centre in Kings Park Road, Moulton Park, is one of three in the country.

Both teams have previously used the centre to train for various international events in the past few years.

Tracy Whittaker-Smith, director of the Northampton club and co-ordinator for the international teams, said: "The teams have both been planning their Olympic ambitions for a number of years and this will be Japan's fifth visit to our trampoline centre and Australia's third.

"We are very excited to be involved in Olympic preparations.

"The trampoline centre visit by world class Olympic athletes is something to treasure as part of the London 2012 legacy."

The Olympic team from Japan includes World and 2012 Test Event bronze medalist, Masaki Ito, along with Yasuhiro Yeyama and Ayano Kishi, two coaches, one scientist, one physio and three staff.

Work starts on new gym

WORK started this week to open the town's first 24-hour gym on the site of a troubled former nightclub in Northampton town centre.

Pure Gym was given the go-ahead by Northampton Borough Council last week to transform the Lava & Ignite nightclub in St Peter's Way into a £1 million gym.

Project managers will oversee the overhaul of the former nightclub and the installation of more than 220 pieces of new state-of-the-art gym equipment.

National marketing manager, Stephen Kirlew, said the turnaround time for the gym would be between eight and 12 weeks.

It is expected the gym will formally open in late June or early July, although the company will be setting up a sales office in the town centre in the run-up, selling membership packages.

He said: "Pure Gym currently runs 23 centres across the country and Northampton will be part of what is an aggressive growth policy over the next year. Once we have opened we will be offering monthly membership for £17.99 and that will be price-fixed for life.

"The concept has proved very popular around the country so far. The gyms have a great atmosphere and we are striving to break down barriers in terms of when people come and use us."

Mr Kirlew said experience elsewhere showed there was a market for customers at all times of the day and night, including the likes of emergency service workers and door staff.

Lava & Ignite closed as a nightclub on October 19 last year, the night on which two students, Nabila Nanfuka aged 22 and 19-year-old Laurene-Danielle Jackson died in a crushing incident.

Within a few days, the parent company of Lava & Ignite, Luminar Leisure, announced it had gone into administration.

The former Lava & Ignite nightclub is to become a 24-hour gymnasium, run by Pure Gym, left

New street lights have been put in across Northamptonshire – but some are complaining they are too bright

CE library picture

Now the street lights are too bright...really!

NEW energy efficient street lights which are now being put up in Northampton, have been criticised by some residents . . . for being too bright.

In January last year, the leaders of Northamptonshire County Council approved plans to switch off half the county's 66,000 street lights to save £2 million in energy bills.

They later revealed plans to install new, energy-saving lights across the county over a five-year period.

The new lights are already in place along some streets in the north and east of the county and work has now begun on installing them in locations around Northampton.

But the politician overseeing the project, Councillor Andre

Gonzalez de Savage (Con, East Hunsbury) has admitted he has already received some complaints.

He said: "A number of people have said they give out too much light and they want them switched off because they've got used to the street outside their homes being darker. So it seems you can't please everyone."

Work to install the new lights began in Kettering, Wellingborough and Daventry in October.

The project is now moving to Northampton, with parts of the Eastern District among the first to benefit.

Across the county, lamp posts which are damaged are among the first to be replaced. Once that work has been completed, the rest of the county's street lights will be upgraded over the next four years.

Despite some complaints about the new lights, Councillor Gonzalez de Savage said the majority of people had been happy.

He said: "We've had a fairly good response overall."

"Thankfully, for some areas that had pretty poor condition lighting columns, there have been major improvements," he added.

"Some people want us to get all the new lights on in five minutes, and I'd love to do that, but it would probably cost £100 million. So we're having to do it a bit more slowly."

It is hoped the new lights will be installed in Abington Street in Northampton town centre this summer.

To see where other lights will be installed, visit www.lighting.northamptonshire.com

Cabinet member praises staff

A MEMBER of Northampton Borough Council's leading cabinet, who had a heart attack earlier this year, has praised medical workers in both Northampton and Oxford for the treatment he received.

The council's cabinet member for finance, Councillor Alan Bottwood (Con, Upton) had a heart attack at the end of March.

He is now well on the way to recovery and said he hoped to be back at the Guildhall in the coming weeks.

He said: "I would like to thank all the staff at Oxford and Northampton General Hospital, particularly the Dryden ward and heart centre staff, who had to put up with me for longer than normal due to slight complications."

"When we often hear about a failing NHS and poor care, I can honestly say I received what can only be described as first class care from both hospitals."

He also thanked everyone who sent him get well wishes while he was in hospital.

Dumped dog left in bubble wrap

A DUMPED dog was left in a bubble-wrapped cage at the side of a main road in Northamptonshire.

Annie Marriott from Animals In Need was shocked to find the abandoned dog inside a bubble-wrapped package strapped to a pallet which was dumped at the gate of the charity's animal sanctuary in Little Irchester.

Mrs Marriott found the parcel at the top of the drive at Pine Tree Farm – on the side of the A509 – last Tuesday morning.

She assumed it would contain a donation of dog food for an appeal the charity had recently made but was surprised when she opened the package to find a dog inside in a cage.

She said: "I was shocked. He was cowering in the back of the kennel. He could have been there from 8pm to 6.30am, we don't know long he was there. It's not very nice with the lorries thundering past."

The dog, which is believed to be a poodle cross and around three years old, has been named Marvin by staff and volunteers at the animal charity.

Mrs Marriott said Marvin had quickly come out of his shell and ate some food, went for a walk around the yard and socialised with other dogs.

She said: "He is an absolute treasure, his tail hasn't stopped wagging. He is going to make someone a cracking little dog . . . he is lovely."

A groomer has offered to sort out Marvin's coat and the Northampton branch of Vets4Pets has offered to microchip, treat, neuter and vaccinate him free of charge and sponsor him while he is staying with Animals In Need. Dog lovers inundated the Chron's Facebook page when news of the discovery first surfaced yesterday.

Alison Saunders said: "Poor little dog, I can't believe some people can be so cruel."

"There's nothing wrong with admitting you can't cope with a pet but 'drop it off' in the day, don't just leave it out in the cold."

Rob Esposito said: "Why can't people just take animals in to shelters and be honest? Not dump them in a box and run away."

Local teacher training opportunities with the Denbigh Teaching School Alliance and The Open University

The Open University

Denbigh School

Working in partnership with The Open University, the Denbigh Teaching School Alliance is planning to recruit a number of teacher trainees on their School Direct programme.

This is a tremendous opportunity for graduates who are interested in becoming secondary school teachers in Mathematics, Physics, Chemistry or Modern Foreign Languages*, to achieve a PGCE and QTS with 'Ofsted Outstanding' providers. Where there are suitable vacancies, students may be offered employment in the Alliance on successful completion of the course.

Denbigh School is one of the first schools in the country to become a Teaching School, while The Open University has trained over six thousand teachers. Working together, we will provide the right high-quality environment to attract and nurture graduates who demonstrate the knowledge, skills and understanding to become excellent teachers.

Students will follow the Open University PGCE, completing at least 23 weeks of school-based training in local schools attached to the Denbigh Teaching School Alliance. The academic component of the course is delivered through the OU's high-quality distance learning materials.

To apply you will need to:

- produce original certificates confirming that you have a degree in which at least one half (but preferably two thirds) is in the subject you wish to teach and that you have at least a grade C in English and Mathematics at GCSE level or an equivalent qualification.
- be able to demonstrate that you have appropriate skills, knowledge, experience and enthusiasm for teaching young people and teaching your subject.

An informal information evening will be held at Denbigh School on Wednesday 30th May 2012 from 7.00 - 8.00pm. To sign up to the information evening, or to request a copy of the prospectus and application form, call Val Hawthorne on 01908 330527.

Completed application forms should be returned by Thursday 7th June 2012.

The training period begins in September 2012. Shortlisted candidates will be invited to attend an interview on Wednesday 4th July 2012. Successful candidates must be willing to undergo an Enhanced CRB check.

Haunting thriller just gets better with age

A CLASSIC thriller comes to the Royal & Derngate this week as it marks its 20th anniversary with a UK tour stopping in Northampton. Following its success in the West End, Stephen Daldry's multi-award-winning production of J.B. Priestley's classic thriller An Inspector Calls arrives at the theatre from Tuesday. Written at the end of the Second World War and set before the First, the play is a haunting thriller about the mysterious Inspector Goole who calls unexpectedly on the prosperous Birling family home, their peaceful dinner party is shattered by his investigations into the death of a young woman. His startling revelations not only shatter the very foundations of their lives but challenge us all to examine our consciences. Daldry's visionary production unites the 1912 setting with the time it was written in 1945, transferring the play to a dramatic cobblestone war-torn wasteland, where the Edwardian Birling family home looms precariously suspended on stilts. Director Stephen Daldry, now triple Oscar nominated for his films The Reader, The Hours and Billy Elliot, had his first major directorial success in 1992 when his revival of J.B. Priestley's An Inspector Calls opened at the National Theatre. The production has received a string of awards including the Olivier for Best Revival, Best Director and Best Designer. An Inspector Calls can be seen in Derngate auditorium from Tuesday until Saturday, May 19 at 7.30pm, with matinees at 2.30pm on Wednesday and Saturday. Tickets – priced from £29.50 to £15 – can be booked by calling the Box Office on 01604 624811 or online at www.royalandderngate.co.uk.

Theatre in the bedroom

THE Playhouse Theatre will present a Bedroom Farce by Alan Ayckbourn from Tuesday.

The play is set in three couple's bedrooms. Ernest and Delia have been out to dinner but have returned hungry and decide to have a supper of pilchards on toast. Malcolm and Kate are holding a house warming party to which they invite Jan and Nick, although Nick is bedridden with a bad back and can't attend. All three preparations are doomed however to disaster by the marital problems of Trevor (son of Ernest and Delia) and his wife Susannah when they descend upon each couple in turn leaving chaos in their wake, finally taking over the bedroom and bed of the long suffering Malcolm and Kate.

A hilarious take on suburban life and the trials and tribulations of married life.

The play runs until Saturday, May 19. Tickets cost £8, concessions £5 and members £5.

Tickets are available at the box office and can be reserved on 01604 627791 or email info@theplayhousetheatre.net.

ROADTEST: Suzuki Kizashi

REVIEW BY IAN DONALDSON

Turning Japanese

THINK about Suzuki cars and you'll probably picture something small but tough enough to dive off road and tow a horse box home from the gymkhana field.

Where you don't expect to find a big Suzuki badge is the front of a handsome and quite large four-door saloon that wouldn't feel out of place in a line of Mondeos, Passats and Insignias.

Wouldn't surprise an American car buyer though; the Kizashi you see here has been on sale in the States for more than two years and in its native Japan for a little longer than that.

Now Suzuki UK has put the car on sale here, not with the intention of selling very many at first, but to see if British buyers like it enough for the sale team to get really serious.

Even looking at the detailed specification of the car offered here you can spot a potential problem (or two) that won't help the Kizashi appeal to the company car user who would be the biggest user.

Most obvious is the engine; it's too big (at 2.4 litres) and drinks the wrong sort of fuel - petrol, when the vast majority of likely competitors are diesels.

And then there's the transmission, a theoretically clever CVT system that uses drums and steel belts to keep the engine at the right revs for best power or economy.

Trouble is, if you put your foot down with too much enthusiasm the revs race away before the car catches up. Be gentlar on the throttle and the car is smoother, but slower.

Why then, after finding steep downsides to such important features of the car, did I still enjoy my working week at the wheel?

The looks don't hurt. Here's a car with solid kerbside appeal and enough distinction in its presentation to make it worth a second look.

Inside, there's obvious quality on show and enough fixtures and fittings (only sat nav is absent; the single option and a dealer fit) to make this a very complete car for the money.

Complete, right down (or up) to a glass sunroof, metallic paint and leather upholstery with heated front seats and front and rear parking sensors. Annoyingly, the clock is a tiny readout buried in the instrument panel and the doors seemed to decide for themselves which would unlock when you plipped the key.

Show its big alloys a stretch of smooth road at moderate speed and the absence of a diesel beat make this petrol-powered machine as quiet as a limo. Up the ante and it stays calm and collected, until you put your foot down and the revs rise.

There's enough space for adults in the rear and the decently sized boot can be enlarged by dropping the seat back, a useful feature in a saloon and more expected from a hatch.

A keen driver will appreciate the Suzuki's controlled ride when there's a need to press on, while passengers will notice the fine way the car dismisses minor road irregularities. Positive and surprisingly firm steering add to the semi-sporting feel.

But all the time the keener driver will be mourning the presence of a manual gearchange that would much better match the car's inherent keenness.

It's offered on Kazashis sold elsewhere and Suzuki UK needs to think again if its presses the go button for a full-on sales assault.

As for a diesel, Suzuki says it has no plans for an oil burner because most Kizashis are sold in Japan and the States, where petrol rules.

Bryan Slinn

There's a gift in life you can not buy
That's very rare and true.
It's the gift of a wonderful Father
Like the one we had in you.

A heart of gold stopped beating.
Two shining eyes at rest.
God broke our hearts to prove to us
He only takes the best.

To best there ever was.
All our love, Jamie and Charlotte

NIGHTMARE DAY - Saints' players show their disappointment following Saturday's play-off defeat to Harlequins

Wilson: Saints so close

ROGER WILSON says Saints are not far away from being 'one of the best teams in Europe'.

And the departing No.8, who is moving back to former club Ulster this summer, is adamant Jim Mallinder will fix the side after this season's disappointment.

Saints suffered an agonising 25-23 defeat at Harlequins on Saturday, bowing out at the Premiership play-off semi-final stage for the third season running.

They had set their sights on league glory after failing to make it out of their pool in the Heineken Cup and losing in the LV= Cup final against Leicester Tigers.

But it wasn't to be, meaning Saints remain on the hunt for major silverware, 12 years after their most recent stellar triumph in the Heineken Cup.

Wilson insists Mallinder is the man for the job, and said: "When the players are on the field, there's only a certain amount Jim can do. It's up to them. There's nothing drastically technical that can be done."

"We've put ourselves in some great positions."

"In the Heineken Cup last year and at Harlequins, two games we should have, without doubt, won."

"We couldn't close them out and you could argue it's to do with the players' mentality and the players just have to look at themselves."

"It's very difficult to pinpoint where it went wrong but we're not that far away. We really are not that far away from being one of the best teams in Europe."

Wilson, who made 118 appearances in the green, black and gold, said: "You look at the strides this club's taken over the past few years and they're definitely in safe hands with Jim, Dorian (West), Grays (Paul Grayson) and all the boys there."

"They're the right people for the job."

"They know rugby, they know how to get the team to gel together, it's just that final little bit that has to come from the players to cross the finish line."

No rush to sell

COBBLERS chairman David Cardoza says there is no rush to sell midfield star Michael Jacobs - but expects transfer activity at Sixfields to increase next week.

Jacobs has been the subject of several transfer enquiries since the season ended, with Derby County expressing the strongest interest in securing the services of the highly-rated 20-year-old.

So far, no club has met Town's asking price and although the implication is the player will leave the club, they are protected by the Bosman ruling, which states any new club would have to pay a tribunal-set fee for him.

"Michael is a very valuable player to us and if anything should happen it has got to be for the right price," said Cardoza.

"The season has only just finished. People will have made their offers to their players and they will be waiting to hear back over the next couple of weeks so they won't be able to get their squads properly together until they know who is staying and who is going."

"It's always going to be a little bit quiet at this time but things will probably hot up at the end of this month and towards the start of the next.

"You don't want these issues to drag on because it does affect things, but it will take as long as it takes."

"There's no rush. We have made him an offer and that's where we are with it."

The Cobblers have offered Jacobs a new deal at Sixfields, which would represent a significant improvement on his current contract but still be short of what he could earn if he moved to a higher level.

Derby, for example, would have a vast playing budget in comparison to the one at Sixfields, and they are a club who pride themselves on identifying promising youngsters and developing them in the first team.

Such a move would tick all the boxes for Jacobs, and Cardoza believes any decision he makes will be based on what is best for him and not the offer that has been tabled at Sixfields.

"If Michael should go it won't come down to what we've offered him, it will be about the size of the club that wants him and the league that they are in," he said.

"However you look at it, we couldn't match a Championship wage even if we wanted to. The money we have to offer won't play a part in Michael's decision-making."
